

Notes to Teacher

This is a fun way to encourage students to read over Winter Break. We all know how busy everyone is over break, so this is just a reminder for students to remember to do some reading. It is flexible, so students and families can read what they choose. I have included two different marshmallow challenge pages. They are very similar except the Christmas one includes a few challenges such as "Read under the Christmas tree," while the Winter one is more holiday neutral.

How to Use:

- 1. Pass out a mug and a page of marshmallows to each student.
- 2. As a class, set a goal of minutes that each marshmallow represents. Base this on your students, families, and length of break. A goal of 30 minutes would mean a total of 300 minutes for break.
- 3. Encourage your students to choose at least 10 marshmallow challenges that appeal to them. They can also write in their own challenges in the blank marshmallows.
- 4. Have students complete the challenge at home and glue the reading challenge on one of the marshmallows on the mug.
- 5. Also encourage students to decorate the mugs so you can hang them up when they are returned.
- 6. Set a due date and let students know when you expect the mugs returned.
- 7. Send the project home over break for some reading fun!

Extension Ideas:

- *When students return the mugs, you may choose to have a hot chocolate party and give special marshmallows based on reading log. Have students share the favorite book they read over break while enjoying hot chocolate.
- *Hold a contest for the best decorated mug.
- *Hang the mugs on a bulletin board titled "Warm Up to a Good Book" or something along those lines.

Winter Break Reading Challenge Due __

We all know how important reading is, so it is important to maintain good reading habits even on a break. Choose at least 10 different marshmallow reading challenges. When you complete the challenge, glue it to your mug. The length of each challenge should be the number of minutes in our goal. Finally, decorate your mug in a creative way.

About Me:

As a classroom teacher, I found myself constantly disappointed with the textbook materials and other classroom resources we were allotted to work with, so I often made my own. The problem is between meetings, lesson plans, new standards, and all of the other tedious parts of the job, I never had enough time to create everything I wanted. Being an avid maker of to-do lists, I had a list a mile long of resources that I wanted to make one day.

In October 2011, my little boy was born, and I couldn't bear the thought of going back to work and leaving him behind. I decided to stay home with him, but a big part of me really missed the classroom. Enter TPT. I had been casually selling materials on TPT just for the fun of it, but it wasn't anything I ever considered to be potential for real supplemental income.

I became a naptime blogger as a way to keep my foot in the education world and to give me something to think about other than diapers and sleep schedules and all of that. Slowly, I began to work through my list of classroom ideas that I always wanted to make. I will go back to the classroom one day, although I don't know exactly when. What I do know is I will be prepared with activities that meet my personal high standards of curriculum.

My purpose for selling on TPT is to give teachers products that are high-quality and make students think. They are more than just a drill and kill worksheet. Another goal for me is to make your life easier. I know you have enough to deal with and think about. My hope is that you can rely on my products to meet your classroom needs, to be easy to implement, and to be enjoyable for both you and your students.

If there is ever a product that does not meet your expectations, please feel free to contact me at swigginsfl@yahoo.com. I appreciate all feedback, good and bad, as I am always on a mission to make educational materials that are the highest quality. Additionally, if you ever have any suggestions or requests, feel free to contact me!

Sincerely,
Sarah Wiggins
